

The Queen's Hearts

A Hands-on Addition Book

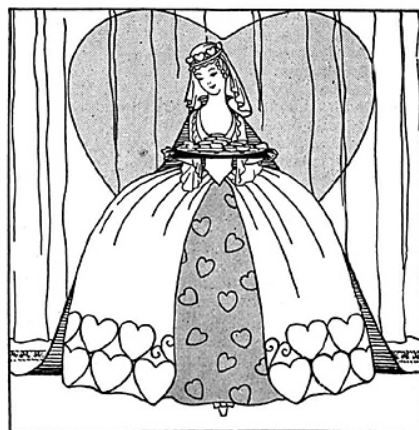

Directions for making the book:

Cut all 3 pages on the dotted lines, so that you have a cover page and 5 addition pages with boxes. Put the pages together so that the cover is on the top and the other pages are lined up correctly. Add a staple to the left side of the book to hold the pages together.

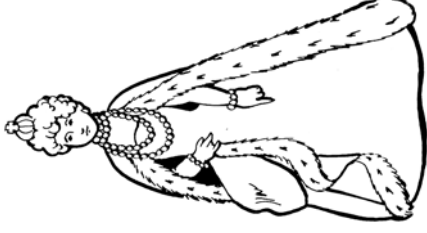

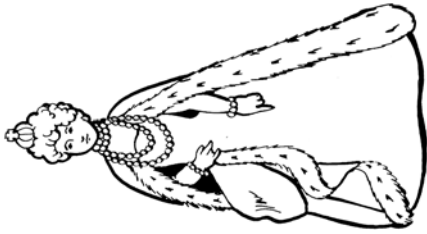

Directions for completing the book:

Students can work alone or with partners. To begin, one student rolls a die (either a traditional die with dots or a die with numerals is acceptable). The student takes the correct number of conversation hearts and places them in the left-most square of the first addition page. The student (or a partner) rolls the die again and places the correct number of conversation hearts in the next square, creating an addition sentence. Count the total number of hearts in both squares to arrive at the sum and place that number of hearts in the last square. Students should now go back and recount the hearts in each box and write the correct numerals in each box. The conversation hearts can now be removed. Students can leave just the numbers in the boxes, draw the correct number of hearts in each box, or add the correct number of mini heart stickers to each box.

Repeat the above directions for each page of the book.
